WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

Maintaining Organizational Excellence

93%

93% of employees say they would stay at a company longer if it invested in furthering their careers.

-LinkedIn Workforce Learning Report

#1

Inadequate career development is the leading reason people leave their jobs, with 21% of those interviewed citing it as the driving factor.

- The Work Institute

REDUCE TURNOVER

Research shows that as the labor market tightens — and the shelf life of skills shrinks — employees not only value education as a benefit, they are more likely to stay when they receive it.

REMAIN COMPETITIVE

Organizations are competing not only for market share, but also for employees. Employees want to work for an employer who will upgrade their skills to keep them competitive with peers from other companies.
